Preface

We would like to start off by thanking all of the amazing artists who contributed their artwork and time to this fan-project. After the finale of Gravity Falls aired in February 2016, the concept for this project first began to take shape. Many months of hard work later, over eighty artists from around the world came together to create this illustrated fanzine celebrating one of our most beloved shows.

We would also like to thank the Gravity Falls fanbase for being such a wonderful and supportive community throughout this project. Without them, being in the Gravity Falls fandom would not have been as magical. Although the series has come to a close, it still holds a very special place in each of our hearts. Thank you to the artists, to the fandom and most of all, Alex Hirsch, for creating a summer we'll remember for the rest of our lives.

OUR HERO

If you've ever taken a roadtrip through the Pacific Northwest, you've probably seen a bumper sticker for a place called Gravity Falls.

It's not on any maps,

and most people have never heard of it.

Some people think it's a myth.

But if you're curious, don't wait.

Take a trip—

Find it.

It's out there, somewhere in the woods...

...Waiting.
